#WHATWOMENBRING

honoring women in  business  community  culture

October 27, 2022

Thank you for joining us at our first in-person #WhatWomenBring event in two years. We are so excited to be with all of you physically and virtually to celebrate and honor women changing the face of business, culture, and community across South Carolina!

This year, like every year, we were impressed by the caliber of nominations coming from you, our community. Our honorees each have a unique story of challenges, triumphs, and perseverance. I know we will all be inspired by their candor, passion, and authenticity.

This event would not be possible without the support of so many. We thank both our new and returning sponsors and our #WWB committee. We also give special thanks to veteran #WWB emcee and news anchor Octavia Mitchell for the many ways she supports this annual event, and we welcome and thank new #WWB emcee and news anchor Ann McGill.

On behalf of the YWCA.GC board of directors and staff, I thank each of you for attending today and giving us your constant support in our dual mission to eliminate racism and empower women.

Sincerely yours,

LaVanda Brown, M.Ed
Executive Director

BUSINESS

SARAH CASTLE
DIRECTOR, AMAZON TECHNICAL ACADEMY, AMAZON

A purposeful leader who transforms organizations and elevates people, Amazon executive Sarah was promoted to director before she was 40 years old.

Prior to taking her current role, she worked in Amazon's books division, on Amazon Alexa voice technology, and mergers & acquisitions: often as one of only a few women working on technical teams.

Today she is also an author and an instructor at the College of Charleston, has served as a speaker at The Citadel's 2022 Women in Entrepreneurship series, and has been a guest on the Snack-Sized Business Podcast.

Sarah earned a master's degree from Cornell University after graduating summa cum laude with a bachelor's degree from Syracuse University. She is also a graduate of the Charleston Metro Chamber of Commerce's Leadership Charleston program.

KEY ISSUES

- 1 Finding career purpose: how to do it "all"
- 2 Race and gender disparities in technology and entrepreneurship

COMMUNITY

ILSIA MUÑOZ
DOJ ACCREDITED REPRESENTATIVE
IMMIGRANT CONNECTION

A strong advocate for the immigrant community with a keen sense of the needs and injustices faced by people of color, Ilsa is authorized by the Department of Justice to act as a legal representative for people in need as they file US Citizenship and Immigration Services paperwork.

She volunteers her time, expertise, and personal story to the Latino community in the Greenville area by presenting at high schools to inspire Latino students with her own tale of hope and success, serving as a dance teacher to young girls at a Latino church, and interpreting sermons at a multicultural church into Spanish each week.

This multi-talented believer in justice for the oppressed, who graduated with honors from Clemson University as a single mother of two young boys, has also been featured by the Hispanic Alliance as one of 30 heroes representing the Latino community.

KEY ISSUES

- 1 Immigration reform and rights
- 2 Anti-Blackness as a result of White supremacy, including anti-Blackness in the Latino community

BUILDING THE FUTURE TOGETHER.

Boeing stands with those, like the YWCA Greater Charleston, who unite people and give them the opportunities to change the world.

COMMUNITY

MARGIE MOORE-WILLIAMSON
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
THE ARC OF SOUTH CAROLINA

A passionate advocate of people with lifelong disabilities and the parent of a son with autism, Margie leads a state-wide organization promoting the human rights of people with intellectual and developmental disabilities as well as supporting their full inclusion in the community.

As executive director of The Arc of South Carolina, she educates communities on the incredible abilities of people with disabilities.

She is also chair of the South Carolina Partnership of Disability Organizations and the Midlands chair of the South Carolina Human Service Providers Association. She has also chaired its legislative group and served as the legislative liaison and a parent educator for the South Carolina Autism Society.

A recipient of the Debbie Burton Award, she graduated cum laude with a bachelor's degree in business administration from Limestone College.

KEY ISSUES

- 1 Eliminating the need for a “special needs” program
- 2 Equality for all people with lifelong disabilities

EDUCATION

PATRICE BLACK DAVIS, ED.D
VICE PRESIDENT, STUDENT SERVICES
TRIDENT TECHNICAL COLLEGE

The only African American vice president on the President's Cabinet at Trident Technical College, Patrice thrives on breaking down barriers for the joy of demonstrating that it can be accomplished and making it easier for the next woman.

A former member of the South Carolina Status of Women Task Force and the College of Charleston's Diversity Initiative, she was the first African American woman asked to serve as an executive mentor in the North Carolina State Adult and Community College doctoral program, and one of two of the first women to be ordained as deacons of Charity Missionary Baptist Church. She sits on the Salem Academy and College Board of Trustees and is the recipient of numerous awards. Patrice holds a bachelor's degree from Salem College, a master's degree from University of North Carolina Greensboro, and a doctorate from North Carolina State University.

KEY ISSUES

- 1 Financial literacy for African American women and girls
- 2 Political engagement of the African American community: voting, power

SHERRIKA MYERS

FOUNDER & EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
EVERY 1 VOICE MATTERS

A warrior for children who feel their voices don't matter, Sherrika is author of The Lil Herbie Series, a collection of English and Spanish children's books focused on social-emotional learning. She is also the creator of anti-bullying mascot Lil Herbie and the Lil Herbie animated series focused on diversity, equity, inclusion, financial literacy, and more. As the founder of Every 1 Voice Matters, Sherrika helps children tackle barriers that hinder them from becoming the best version of themselves. She is the recipient of an ABC News 4 Jefferson Award, the Iota Phi Lambda Kappa Chapter Living Makers of Black History Award, Woman Life Changers Award, and a Black Excellence Community Award. This Trident Technical College alum was also named a 2020 Top 10 Entrepreneur by NY Weekly and has been featured by Black News Channel, ABC, NBC, CBS, E Monthly News, and others.

KEY ISSUES

- 1 Community outreach
- 2 Equal education opportunity for all kids, especially those living in low-income communities

HEALTHCARE

RICHIE SIMONE LEE, BS, CLC, LCCE
OWNER
BIRTHING WITH PURPOSE, LLC

An educator and advocate for families of color preparing for a birth, Simone is a certified doula, lactation counselor, placenta encapsulation specialist, and Reiki practitioner. Inspired by the birth of her own children, she founded her firm to empower moms to make informed decisions about their experiences, to eliminate disparities for moms of color, and to improve overall birth outcomes in South Carolina.

She also co-founded, with community partners, the Berkeley Early Education & Care Collective, where she serves as doula mentor. She has presented twice at the Networks of Opportunity for Child Wellbeing national conference on health disparities among pregnant Black women and served as volunteer doula at Florence Crittendon Home for pregnant teenage girls. She holds a bachelor's degree in psychology from the College of Charleston.

KEY ISSUES

- 1 The maternal mortality crisis in the US, especially for Black women
- 2 Eliminating food deserts; increasing rural access to quality healthcare

MEDIA

REBECCA RYAN COLLETT
OWNER
COLLETT MEDIA

As managing editor of NBC WCBD News 2, Rebecca led on-air and online content decisions for six hours of news daily before leaving to found her own public relations and video production firm... just two months before the pandemic hit. Accustomed to making decisions from a place of freedom rather than fear, the award-winning journalist—she took home the Associated Press Award for best investigative report in 2017—was so successful her husband quit his job two years later. Along with running her boutique PR firm, she serves on the board of the Larry and Rebecca Collett Foundation, supporting global leadership and faith-based programs around the world.

Rebecca, who seeks to approach every conversation with a spirit of love and honesty, holds a bachelor's degree in electronic communications from the University of South Carolina.

KEY ISSUES

- 1 Access and understanding of digital tools for all people, especially children
- 2 Supporting working mothers

INTERNATIONAL AFRICAN AMERICAN MUSEUM

THE ANCESTORS ARE CALLING. Visit and honor their stories.

Located at the historically sacred site of Gadsden's Wharf, one of the country's most prolific slave trading ports, the International African American Museum is uniquely positioned to honor the untold stories of the African American journey. Through authentic, empathetic storytelling, the International African American Museum explores the African American experience through the power of place by acknowledging the achievements of Africans and African Americans, exhibiting how their labor, resistance, and ingenuity has shaped every aspect of our world.

In 2023, be among the first visitors to reconnect with the ancestors. Learn their stories, honor their memory, and celebrate their contributions.

TECHNOLOGY

JESSICA D. KEARSE
SENIOR CONSULTANT
YOVANT

Jessica, head of a software project team at insurance technology firm Yovant, was a member of the executive team that revitalized the Clemson Black Alumni Council after years of dormancy. During her tenure on its board, she served as director of technology and communications, marketing, and special events, leveraging technology to raise efficiency and raising over $20,000 for student programming and scholarships.

Today she serves on the board of insurance technology collaborative Its.col, where she chairs the talent committee. She has also served as vice president of the Edisto Clemson Club, a board member of the Clemson Women's Alumni Council and the Clemson Black Alumni Council, and a Young Professionals InsurTech panelist. This ambitious servant leader holds a bachelor's degree in psychology from Clemson University and an MBA from Webster University.

KEY ISSUES

- 1 Representation and diversity in insurance technology
- 2 Mentoring of students of color at predominantly White institutions

In December 2021, 10 of the 23 EdD graduates of CSU's first doctoral program were Black women. We are proud to empower women as they choose their path to purpose.
